The main problem as I see it, is not history itself. The study of history can be fun. But there's only one thing that can make our first experience with history a miserable thing indeed: and that's a poor instructor. Thirteen Reasons Why is a young adult novel written in 2007 by Jay Asher. It is the story of a young high school student as she descends into despair brought on by betrayal and bullying, culminating with her suicide. She details the thirteen reasons why in an audio diary which is mailed to a friend two weeks after her death. I'm abt 16 yrs old turning 17 and I'm taking up bs-architecture.... well, yes it's very fun to study architecture. I passed my major subjects like theory of arch., design, visual technique, graphics... but there is only 2 subjects that I'm afraid that I failed and that is math (college algebra and trigonometry) I know it's part of architecture but I think I will fail my course. Jay Asher's debut YA novel, Thirteen Reasons Why, has appeared regularly on the New York Times bestsellers list for the past nine years. It has sold over 2.5 million copies in the United States alone and is currently in production to be a thirteen-part series on Netflix.
